

Changes in the "Professional" Appellation

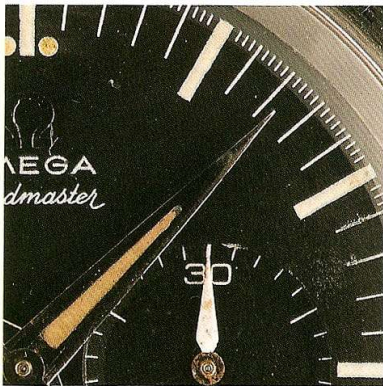

CK2915-ST105012 (1957-66)

ST 105012- (1966-)

The Speedmaster family did not make use of the appellation "Professional" from its inception, but only after Omega learned of NASA's decision to adopt the Speedmaster as its official timepiece.

Changes in Luminous Dial Markers

CK2915-ST105012 (1957-67)

ST 145012- (1966-)

There were also subtle changes in the dial markers. In the early days, the luminous bar on the face covered the 1/5th second markings, but it was shortened to make a more accurate reading possible.